Church News

Letter from the Archdeacon of Hereford and Ludlow

It is said we are shaped by our culture. If that is true, then one of the strongest leadership motifs is that of the hero leader. In film, we have James Bond, Indiana Jones and Princess Leia; in television, we have Doctor Who, Buffy and Danger Mouse. We are surrounded by heroes (I'm a big action film and sci-fi fan).

So often, however, they are flawed individuals: some like Bond or The Doctor are anti-heroes just staying the right side of the line but edging on many occasions into the ambiguous middle ground, the grey moral no-man's land of society's values. Some like Batgirl or the Green Arrow seem to have turned to the darkness to right the wrongs of society and they are shaped by a deep inner drive and personal angst.

Many of the old heroes like Captain America and Wonder Woman knew which side of the line they stood, firmly in the light, righting wrongs with justice, compassion and fairness. We could always tell the good guy or girl because they wore the white hat (The Lone Ranger) while the bad guys always wore black (Darth Vader).

The problem for the Church is that these heroes and anti-heroes always win the day, good always triumphs, and the hero wins the applause and adulation. This is extremely seductive for those who seek or feel called to leadership positions: being the saviour raises us to the standard of hero. It places us at the centre of the action, it creates status, position and power, but it also creates problems. There is only one saviour in the Christian story and it isn't one of us.

In the temptation of Jesus in the wilderness, Satan offered him the chance to be a super hero, to be adored and feted. Instead, however, Jesus chose a different path. He chose the path of servant and constantly refused to be the hero. Not only did he choose a different path but he chastised James and John when they sought power and position. Peter was rebuked for refusing to have his feet washed. Those in religious power consistently found Jesus challenged them for abusing their positions. Jesus' challenge is for the leader to be a servant, not a hero; to seek the path of service, generosity, hospitality, compassion and self-giving.

Even in the business world it is now widely recognized that the hero leader or heroic CEO is more hindrance than help. As Jim Collins, the author of Good to Great, says: Virtually everything our modern culture believes about the type of leadership required to transform our institutions is wrong. It is also dangerous. There is perhaps no more corrosive trend to the health of our organisations than the rise of the celebrity CEO, the rock-star leader whose deepest ambition is first and foremost self-centric.

If you feel a call to leadership in the Church then perhaps you need to stop and ask yourself what is your motivation, do you want to serve or be served? A good friend of mine used to ask prospective ordinands, at their first meeting, how they'd feel if he asked them to sweep up the leaves on his drive, or to help him wash the dishes. He understood that leadership began and ended with "servant-heartedness".

So heroic leaders need not apply! What is wanted here and now in our church as we emerge from Covid-19 are servant-hearted leaders who are ambitious for the Kingdom and not for themselves. They are those who point to Jesus as the one who transforms lives and society; they recognise they are only signposts to a Kingdom that is both here and yet to come.

If you feel you are called to leadership that points to Jesus, then the Church needs you!

Church News (continued)Letter from the Rectory

As I am writing this the lockdown continues to be eased – in most places. Over the past few months we have seen a gradual easing of restrictions and in some respects at least life is starting to feel more normal.

As part of that process of re-opening, we now have permission to re-start services in churches, although inevitably this comes with limits on what we can do and it will be a different experience to that which has been familiar. Amongst the differences we have to observe are 2 metre social distancing and not being allowed to sing. Given the size of some of our church buildings, a 2 metre distance between people is going to severely restrict how many people we can fit into the building and so, initially at least, we are asking you to contact me before each service to let me know that you'd like to come. So long as we can physically fit you in within the limits imposed upon us everyone is welcome - whether you have been a churchgoer before or not. We won't be having the usual pattern of services to start with: we'll see how it goes and we can review it all each month as we need to. We will be continuing to put services on YouTube for those who would like to join us but don't yet feel that sitting in church with others is for them.

Services won't be the same as those we have been used to, and this will be the most drastic change any of us will have experienced in our lives. However, if we had a time machine and could travel back to see how worship has changed during the time our buildings have stood, we would find that at some times it was not unlike that we have known, but at other times it was very different. It is easy to become too focussed on the peripherals and not on why it is that we gather as a worshipping community. What actually matters is not the music or what the service looks like but that we come together as the people of God to worship Him, to pray for the world and its people and to equip ourselves to spread the good news of His love for all people. We look forward to being able to do this again.

Rev'd John Beesley

Church Services in August

The churches continue to be open daily (but see below) for people to go to sit, to pray, and to take time to be with God.

We are now able to resume services, but with restrictions. The main restrictions are that we have to observe are 2 metre social distancing and that we are not allowed to sing. Holy Communion is permitted but the congregation will receive the bread only. To reduce the level of cleaning required the church buildings will be closed for 72 hours after each service has taken place – this will usually affect a maximum of two buildings a week so other churches will still be open for private prayer. Please do not come to church if you have symptoms of Covid-19. If you are someone who falls into one of the 'vulnerable' categories please think carefully about whether or not you should come to services – in the end it is your decision and we will understand completely if you don't feel the time is right for you to come to church yet. We have to record who attends each service for track-and-trace purposes: the details kept will be destroyed after three weeks. All of this is, of course, dependant on the Coronavirus situation: if it deteriorates we may find that we have to stop meeting again. We will follow national guidance. We plan to record some of the services and to upload these to YouTube. Recording will be done so that congregation members are not in the picture. There will also be Evensong on Zoom twice each month.

At the time of writing the services in coming weeks are planned to be:

Sunday July 26th

10am Holy Communion at Munslow
6pm Evensong at Tugford

Sunday August 2nd

10am Holy Communion at Diddlebury
6pm Evensong on Zoom

Sunday August 9th

10am Holy Communion at Munslow
6pm Evensong at Culmington

Sunday August 16th

10am Holy Communion at Diddlebury
6pm Evensong on Zoom

Sunday August 23rd

10am Holy Communion at Munslow
6pm Evensong at Abdon

Sunday August 30th

10am Holy Communion at Diddlebury
6pm Evensong on Zoom

In addition, the services of Compline continue on Wednesday evenings. They will be uploaded to the YouTube channel each Wednesday and will remain there for you to access whenever you might like.

To ensure we can fit everyone into the building within distancing requirements, please let me know if you plan to come to a service – email revjbeesley@gmail.com or telephone 01584 841488.

We can now have baptisms, weddings and funerals in church subject to restrictions, particularly that we can have no more than 30 people in the church. Please get in touch if I can help – with this or anything else.

The Corvedale KitchenHomemade coleslaw Serves 8-10

This is the perfect addition to a summer salad or barbecue and far nicer than anything you can buy in the shops. It can be made in advance and will keep well in the fridge for several days.

Ingredients

- | | |
|---------------------------------|---|
| Half a small white onion | 2 heaped tablespoons of mayonnaise |
| Small white cabbage | 2 heaped tablespoons of plain yoghurt |
| 2 large carrots | Tablespoon of freshly chopped chives (optional) |
| 2 tablespoons of salad dressing | Freshly ground black pepper to taste |

Method

1. Finely chop the onion, thinly slice the cabbage and grate the carrots. This can be done by hand or in a food processor.
2. Place these ingredients in a large bowl and mix thoroughly.
3. Add the salad dressing and mix again.
4. Add the mayonnaise, yoghurt and black pepper and mix to combine.
5. Top with the chopped chives.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Planning application 20/02519/OUT

Proposed residential development for the erection of 12 Dwellings and operational development support (revised scheme) on land to the east of The Moors View, Diddlebury.

DPC has decided, based on advice from the National Association of Local Government and taking present Government advice into consideration, that the best practical and safest way to deal with this planning application is via a Zoom meeting.

This meeting will be held online via Zoom on Wednesday 12th August at 7.00pm.

We would encourage people to send their views to Shropshire Council's Planning Portal, which is done by logging on to Shropshire Planning, quoting the planning number - 20/02519/OUT. DPC will read and take note of all public comments logged on the Planning Portal and such comments will also form part of the Planning Officer's considerations. Alternatively, email your comments directly to DPC using a dedicated email address - diddleburypczoom@gmail.com. DPC will take note of all the comments received and these comments will form the basis of DPC's consideration of the public consultation on the matter.

People who wish to join in with the Zoom meeting on the 12th August are requested to email the clerk using diddleburypczoom@gmail.com with a request to do so NO LATER than Tuesday 11th August. Email invitations, as is normal with Zoom meetings, will then be sent to them allowing them to request admission to the meeting at the appropriate time by following the instructions in the invitation, which will contain the necessary Meeting ID and Password.

The format of the meeting will be as per the EGM Agenda, which will be publicised on DPC's website, in the Corvedale News, on the Corvedale Google Group and displayed on notice boards around the parish prior to the meeting.

The public responses considered in the meeting by DPC will be based on the written submissions to the Planning Portal and those sent to the clerk. DPC will also be prepared to hear from a few people representing groups of residents, such as the PPSG, FAG and the applicants' representatives. These groups can request to participate in the Zoom meeting by emailing the clerk using diddleburypczoom@gmail.com to make their intentions to participate known. Hopefully, by doing this we will be in a position to record the parish council's views on the application as well as having given parishioners and the applicants a say, and thus register our views for other bodies relevant future planning consideration.

Even though the meeting will be held on Zoom the conduct of the meeting will reflect normal meeting protocols.

W J Webster: Thoughts on Staycations

A topical few lines based loosely on Masefield

We must go down to the sea again.
 To a sea as grey as the sky,
 Where all we'll get is an icy dip.
 And nothing to warm us dry.

We must go down to the beach again
 Where the jetsam's swept in on the tide
 And joins whatever's been chucked down and left
 To litter the landward side.

We must stroll down on the front again
 And recall what its like to inhale
 Not the sea-salty tang of fresh coastal air
 But car fumes and chip fat gone stale.

We must go down to the sea again
 Where the view is of turbines or mist
 And the rain's lurking ready to drizzle or drench
 On the whim of the winds as they list.

This poem is published with the kind permission of The Spectator

Anon: I'm Fine, Thank You (abridged)

This poem was suggested by one of our readers

There is nothing the matter with me.
 I'm as healthy as I can be.
 I have arthritis in both my knees
 And when I talk, I talk with a wheeze.

My pulse is weak, and my blood is thin
 But I'm awfully well for the shape I'm in.
 Arch supports I have for my feet
 Or I wouldn't be able to be on the street.

Sleep is denied me night after night,
 But every morning I find I'm all right.
 My memory is failing, my head's in a spin
 But I'm awfully well for the shape I'm in.

Old age is golden, I've heard it said;
 But sometimes I wonder as I get into bed
 With my ears in the drawer my teeth in a cup,
 My eyes on the table until I wake up.

I get up each morning and dust off my wits
 And pick up the paper and read the obits.
 If my name is still missing, I know I'm not dead
 So I fix me some breakfast and go back to bed.

Kath Woodhouse: Covid-19

Our reader Kath's views on the virus

What is the world coming to?
 We are all in lockdown now
 Because a deadly disease came from China
 It caught us unawares somehow

This deadly disease is called coronavirus
 It upsets our lungs and heart
 It begins with flu like symptoms
 And we are told to isolate to start

Then came social distancing,
 We must all stay two metres apart
 The testing programme got underway
 After a very late start

The businesses and schools are all silent
 The young ones are finding it hard
 The cafes, pubs, diners are empty.
 No movement much on the cards

Just a brisk walk or bike ride.
 Or a queue at the shops, must be quick
 The virus will spread like wildfire,
 From mouth to mouth in a tick

The politicians and scientists are busy
 Giving us facts and figures each day
 The graphs take a lot of understanding
 But there's light at the end of the tunnel they say

Their latest goal is to find a vaccine
 They need guinea pigs to have a jab
 They say there's a long list waiting
 And they will process the results in the lab

Our National Health workers are brilliant
 The doctors and nurses go that last lap
 To help and comfort the needy
 They deserve more than the Thursday night clap

They are there at the end to give comfort
 Regardless of their own health and pain
 They leave family and loved ones behind them
 As they don PPE clothing once again

The carers are still doing their duty
 Visiting patients at home with no alarm
 The care homes are looking after the elderly
 Trying to keep them safe and free from harm

Our thoughts are with all the families
 That have lost loving members to date
 Our prayers and hopes are for the future
 That this deadly disease will abate.

And finally...

There once was a virus called Covid,
Whose symptoms were really quite horrid.
It came here from China.
Perhaps on a liner.
And we cannot even get trollied!
This ghastly new virus from China
Made from Pangolins bits in a diner.
Has arrived here in Blighty
Causing mayhem almighty.
We should send it straight back to the blighter.

CORVEDALE GOOGLE GROUP

For the past seven years there has been a 'Diddlebury Parish Google Group' which runs alongside the Diddlebury Parish Website – www.diddleburyparish.co.uk. Over time, the coverage of the group has expanded so that it now includes members from several neighbouring parishes and further afield. With the Corvedale News being issued electronically via the group for the duration of the pandemic, it seemed a good time to reflect this expanded coverage with a name change and accordingly, the Group has been renamed 'The Corvedale Google Group'. The Google group is a fast and efficient way of getting information to a large number of people. It is particularly useful in circulating information during times of crisis such as flooding or the current COVID-19 pandemic. It is run by volunteers and is not for profit. It is free to use.

In the past the group has been used to publicise community events such as the Corvedale Show, activities at the village halls, local road closures, pub quiz dates, relevant information issued by Shropshire Council and last-minute changes to/cancellations of events. Anyone who wishes to inform the local community of similar items is welcome to do so, by contacting me. Membership of the group has increased by 60% in the last month.

If you think you would find this Google group useful or know of anyone whom you think might benefit from membership, please ask them to send an email to me and I will add them to the distribution list. My email address is: gneden@googlemail.com. No unsuitable material will ever be sent. You will not be bombarded with emails and can opt out at any time. Your email address will not be disclosed to any third parties.

Corvedale & District Autumn Show

After much deliberation and with deep regret, the team responsible for the 'Autumn Show' has unanimously agreed that this year's show should be cancelled.

We look forward to seeing you in 2021.

Cancelled

Corvedale Garden Group

The Corvedale Garden Group hasn't been able to meet since February as all the venues we had planned to visit have been closed since lockdown down. However, we made an exception this month and met in small numbers to honour Ella Whitehead who died recently. Her garden effects raised the excellent sum of £363 for the Alzheimer's Society.

The August meeting is cancelled. Fingers crossed for September!

Culmington Parish Pandemic Volunteers

Culmington Parish Council would like to thank Gilli Coutts, Mark Littlejohn and all of the volunteers for the enormous effort you made to ensure that the people of the parish were supported during the pandemic lock-down period. It has been a very difficult and stressful period for many and having support from local people has made such a difference. Thank you.

Corvedale Book Group

Waiting For Sunrise by William Boyd

A sub-group of us continues to meet monthly for the book group on Zoom. We miss those members who are not with us and it isn't the same, but it remains a delight to read and share books and to find out how other people's views alter our perceptions of what we have read and sometimes make us read the book again to reflect on new insights.

A few years back, we had read and enjoyed 'The Ice-cream War' which we felt was a better example of Boyd's work. 'Waiting for Sunrise' had more mixed reviews in the press and the comments matched those made by the group. However, it seemed an apt title for these Covid times!

Lysander Rief is a young man with a difficulty affecting his personal relationship with his fiancé, Blanche - the tall, pale and willowy actress with whom he works. He goes to Vienna to try the fashionable cure of psychoanalysis, not with Sigmund Freud, whom he meets in a cafe, but with Dr Bensimon who effects a cure using his theory of 'parallelism'. This essentially involved Lysander in rewriting the truth about an episode in his childhood to make it more palatable. 'Et voila', as the French would say, he is cured.

In the waiting room he meets Captain Alwyn Munro and Miss Hettie Bull, who become major characters in the book. Hettie entices him to the barn where she works as a sculptor and they begin an affair. When she later accuses him of rape, Captain Munro and his colleagues bail him out and he is spirited back to England via Geneva. There is, of course, a cost both financial and personal. Lysander is in the army but is given a special role on account of his fluent German to uncover the agent 'Andromeda'. He crosses no man's land and becomes a spy. He gains the required information and is returned to London, wounded in the course of his duties, by another spy who doesn't trust him.

From there the book becomes a little like a Brian Rix farce where the characters keep meeting and re-meeting in new situations: a Zeppelin raid, a literary party, at Claverleigh Hall with his mother and step-father, in a theatre, in seedy hotels on the south coast and on Hampstead Heath. Lysander manages to complete his task and pay off his debt to the British government. To tell you more would be to spoil the plot.

The story starts slowly with a long and vivid description of Lysander's boarding house and landlady in Vienna. Vienna is evocatively described, as is Hettie's wardrobe, in great detail. His surroundings and the atmospheres are well drawn. Life at Claverleigh Hall is also drawn well and here we meet the more interesting character of Major Hamo Rief, Lysander's uncle who has always protected his back.

The book seems to have too many themes and too many characters and locations. It jumps from one to another in time, which on occasion makes it difficult to follow. The end was unpredictable and there were several loose ends. The overall opinion was that it was neither literature nor a proper spy story. Other William Boyd books read by group members had had more coherence, and were enjoyed more - 'Any Human Heart', 'Sweet Caress', 'Ordinary Thunderstorms'. The literary reviews described it as 'evocative and experimental' or 'a story of no great depth or pretensions'. Both are accurate.

For our meeting on August 13th we will read David Attenborough's 'Journeys to the other side of the world'. It may be the nearest we get to a foreign holiday for a while.

The sky at night in the Corvedale

This is the first in an occasional series of articles on the night sky in the Corvedale. One of the best things about living in rural Shropshire is, that it is dark at night. There are not many people living in the UK who can say that they can step outside their house, and see the same skies as their ancestors, the same stars and planets, and phases of the moon. For the majority of people in Britain today, the night sky is orange from low pressure sodium street lighting, and they do not have the opportunity to marvel at the heavens, and contemplate the vastness of creation.

In 1594 John Davis wrote a text book on navigation called 'The Seaman's Secrets'. He had a career of world exploration in the service of Queen Elizabeth the First, and charted, amongst other places, the Davis Strait between Canada and Greenland which bears his name. He came to a sticky end on the 5th December 1604 at the hands of some pirates whom he had captured off the coast of Singapore.

Among the fascinating tips and tricks that he passes on to the student world navigator is a remarkable means of working out the amount of moonlight that we can expect in the Corvedale on any night. We are lucky enough to have no streetlighting, and are thus connected through the ages to our ancestors who only had natural sources of light.

Firstly, Davis reminds us that from new moon to new moon

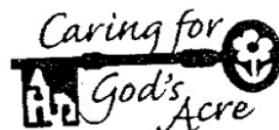

(i.e. no moonlight) is 30 days (or more specifically 29 days, 12 hours and 44 minutes). A full moon has an age of 15 days, and will rise at the setting of the sun. It will be highest and give maximum brightness at midnight GMT. From days 1 - 14 the moon rises and sets gradually later than the sun, each day an additional 48 minutes, continuing in the same way from day 16 to the next new moon.

Let's determine the moon's age on 1st August 2020. Davis tells us to take the year (2020) and add 1, unless we are in January or February (2021). We then divide by 19, and see what the remainder is (7). I know that 2014 perfectly divides by 19. We multiply that by 11 (77) and add all the months from March inclusive (83) and the day of the month (84).

This is where we have to adjust for the loss of the 11 days in 1752 when Britain changed from the Julian calendar to the Gregorian calendar. So, take away 11 (73). Then we take away all the full 30-day cycles in that and get the moon's age of 13, two days before a full moon. It will rise approximately 96 minutes before sunset, and will give plenty of light to walk to the pub and back!

Caring for God's Acre - Munslow's Summer Tidy-Up In the Burial Ground or in St Michael's Churchyard, Munslow

Join our volunteers for a practical day, clearing away the summer's overgrowth, now that the wild flowers have gone to seed. This year the variety and display of wild flowers has been stronger and more varied than ever. For the first time, there have been white as well as pink champions. If only we could be successful in establishing yellow rattle, then stronger growing grasses could be thwarted, then the job would be easier – despite two attempts, no success as yet.

Wednesday 26th August

Alex has arranged a new date for Munslow's visit, now that we are allowed to meet together again, but we still need to pay attention to social distancing as per the current guidelines. The God's Acre teams are meeting in smaller groups, usually about five or six, in number, to keep distances regulated. Volunteers are requested to bring their own tools and gloves, lunch and refreshments – this means that I will not need to make my usual cakes, for which, some people may be grateful.

Remember to wear suitable footwear and gloves. For more information please contact

Corvedale Past and PresentA Word on the Subject of Castles

I don't know about you, but I have complicated responses to Victorian words and thinking, loving so much of it. Yet so many of their ideas were based on the solid rock of their own conceptions and beliefs. These days, perhaps, we are more circumspect. Certainly, the idea of a castle and its occupants engendered in a book like Ivanhoe (strictly speaking pre-Victorian), might engender the vision of the chivalrous knight and a noble cause against the backdrop of a mighty stone castle. But it may be less than complete.

The origin of castles was not English; indeed, apart from a few examples, they were unknown in England prior to the Norman Conquest. Their beginnings were far from noble in concept and probably not primarily military.

The whole business started in Italy and France in the last few decades before the first Millennium, tough times in Western Europe, with local, and often self-styled, 'nobles'. They had a taste for land grabbing and carving out a place for themselves in a cutthroat feudal hierarchy. The castle evolved as a highly visible warning to the local peasantry to knuckle under, and characteristically appeared on a rocky prominence. The new 'Castellan' not only felt solidity under his feet but had the option of building in stone straight away. In the lowlands the alternative was throwing up an earthen 'mott'. These motts might not bear masonry for many decades although a wooden fortress had less 'awe factor'.

The knight, an ancient concept, was reinvented in these times, but we can forget Ivanhoe. We should think instead more of a mounted bully-boy retainer, perhaps himself drawn from the ranks of the cowed poor, who was willing to inflict on his erstwhile neighbours the oppression he himself would have sorely feared. So, a local 'Count' – let us say in Anjou, in Northern France, which was to spawn a whole generation of English Kings in the 12th century – might, if he wanted to, 'tool-up' to control his locale. The castle was the 'must-have' weapon, out of which his mounted knights could clatter to 'protect' the local villagers. The voices of the poor were, of course, never recorded, but they might have preferred 'protection racket' as a description! You can even imagine that scattered populations were 'encouraged' to cluster new villages around the castle-rock. We might feel the shiver down their spines whenever they lifted eyes from the ground.

When the new Norman overlords came to England they must have been regarded as little more than barely reformed, quakingly fierce, Norse pirates albeit with a veneer of mainstream Christian civilisation. Their spectacular land-grab of the most prosperous and organised country in Europe was followed by a 'carve-up,' as vast estates were presented to near allies of The Conqueror. True to form, these men were enthusiasts for this now not-so-new castle technology, but perhaps with a slightly more nuanced application.

We might take the example of the three local castles in The Corvedale, Holdgate, Corfham and Broncroft. Prominent sites? Yes, no doubt, and still intended to show the locals a thing or two, but these were now the seat of men of de-facto legitimacy with status, administering laws and encouraging new developing technologies in agriculture and industry. So, perhaps not surprisingly, these castles are rooted in the valley floor, not commanding surrounding high ground. These new Castellans were still exploiting their riverine estates, still controlling surrounding villages and extensive hunting grounds, from what was then a headquarters, a totemic status symbol, a centre of law, a place to lavish targeted hospitality, a military academy, a hunting lodge, a fortified home, a bank, a prison and – above all – a place to inspire awe. It might even have been used as a fortress when times required.

I am drawn back time and again to the fascinating and complex site at Corfham (SO 52.85): the residual humps and bumps are seen to the left. However, had this place merely been a fortress we might agree with the explanation board on the site which expresses the opinion that this castle was somewhat 'pointless'!

DIDDLEBURY PARISH COUNCIL

During the suspension of council meetings, Diddlebury Parish Council (DPC) has carried out the following actions using delegated powers during June and July 2020. These actions will be incorporated into the Parish Council's Minutes for its meeting on 22nd July 2020 for publication on DPC's website.

Planning: 20/02161/FUL - proposed dwelling south west of Red Brick Barn, Corfton. (The Donkey Patch), namely erection of a dwelling with garage, alteration of existing access and installation of septic tank. Councillors considered this application and unanimously strongly objected to it.

20/02197/VAR - application for the variation of Condition No 2 attached to the planning permission ref. 16/03628/FUL for the development of the old poultry units at Corfton. Councillors considered this application and by a majority objected to it.

19/03538/OUT - outline application (access, scale for consideration) for the erection of 3 detached houses and garages, creation of a new vehicular access and installation of a private treatment plant on land to the north west of Lower House, Corfton. This application was objected to by DPC and permission was refused by SC. However, the matter has now been appealed to the Secretary of State. The Planning Inspector's ref. is APP/L3245/W/20/3251667. His decision is awaited.

20/02519/OUT (new application) - Outline application (all matters reserved) for the erection of 12 dwellings and operational supporting development (revised scheme) at land to the east of The Moors View, Diddlebury.

DPC will be considering this application at an EGM on the 12th August at 7.00pm via a Zoom remote meeting. Anyone who wishes to join in this Zoom meeting must send a request for an invitation to the Clerk via a dedicated email address -
